

New and improved Healthy Western Sydney website

Western Sydney Primary Health Network (WSPHN) is pleased to announce the launch of a new and improved Healthy Western Sydney patient resource website.

The website offers western Sydney health care consumers access to a range of patient information resources, curated by the HealthPathways clinical team. The new mobile friendly design provides a richer user experience with a range of functionality improvements.

Users will now have access to:

- ☑ Browse the site in multiple languages
- ☑ Filter resources by age group, language, health groups and content type
- ☑ Bookmark their favourite resources
- ☑ Check their symptoms and lookup medications
- ☑ Locate a health service through the Service Finder

GPs can direct their patients to Healthy Western Sydney to find out more about their health condition, knowing that the resources on the page are reputable and have been developed by local GPs.

Tender Opportunities

WSPHN is seeking proposals for services to enhance chronic disease prevention and management across western Sydney. The objective of this funding is to enhance services beyond what is currently funded by other sources such as Medicare Benefit Schedule (MBS). Priority areas looking to fund include primary care patient services, enhanced health literacy, skills development, increased access. For more information visit Tenderlink.

Evaluation of HealthPathways

Curtin University have established a study to evaluate aspects of HealthPathways. The study aims to evaluate the usage, experiences and opinions of health professionals in order to understand the experiences and barriers of HealthPathways. By participating in this study, you will be asked to complete the online survey. The information collected throughout this process will be kept confidential.

WSLHD Health Services Plan to 2026

Graeme Loy, the new Chief Executive (Acting) of the Western Sydney Local Health District (WSLHD) launched the WSLHD Health Services Plan at their WSLHD Health Forum and Annual Public on 31 October. The plan is about making sure the WSLHD can meet the health care demand over the next few years, given the population growth, ageing population and increase in chronic and complex illnesses. It is also about providing care in the best place for patients – whether that's at home, in the community or at hospital.
